Amsterdam, ....., 2006

Dear .....

We are pleased that you have agreed to write an original contribution intended for publication in the Book, (provisionally) entitled:

Handbook of the Philosophy of Economics

Professor Mäki will act as an Editor of this Book. This book will be published as a volume of a series (provisionally) entitled:

Handbook of Philosophy of Sciences

This letter will inform you of the terms under which we will publish your contribution.

You will receive free of charge 1 (one) complimentary copy of the Book. You may purchase additional copies of the Book at a discount of 40% for your personal use only but not for resale. You may choose 1 (one) other complimentary copy from the Handbook of Philosophy of Science volumes. Other titles from the Handbook of Philosophy of Science volumes can be purchased at a discount of 40% off the list price for your personal use but not for resale. You will also receive 50 (fifty) free reprints of your published contribution for your personal use, but not for resale. You may purchase additional reprints for your personal use only, at our usual rates.

Please communicate with the Editor(s) on all matters concerning the preparation of your contribution. The Editor(s) will discuss with you the contents, length of your contribution and the form in which the manuscript for your contribution is to be submitted, the date of delivery and other requirements concerning your contribution.

Please provide the electronic files of your manuscript, preferably in TeX or LaTeX. In order to help you with the preparation of your manuscript, please see our URL: <http://authors.elsevier.com> then to book publishing (right hand bar) and then to electronic manuscripts (compuscripts) If, in the opinion of the Editor(s) or ELSEVIER, your manuscript does not meet our required scientific or technical standards, or if it is not in accordance with the Instructions for Authors, or any other conditions agreed upon, the Editor(s) or ELSEVIER shall be at liberty, at their discretion, to either not accept the manuscript for publication (in which event ELSEVIER shall not be under any further obligation or liability to you), or if the publication schedule allows, return the manuscript to you for revision.

In order to provide for the widest possible dissemination of your contribution, we ask you to assign copyright in your contribution to us, including all subsidiary rights, electronic rights, and all licensing rights, throughout the world and for the full term of copyright and any renewals and extensions thereof. Your signature on this letter will constitute the assignment.

You may reproduce your contribution for educational and scientific purposes without fee or permission with the exception of reproduction by services that collect fees for delivery of documents. You may use part or all of your contribution in any future works of your own. In any reproduction, the original publication by the Publisher must be credited in the following manner: "First published in the Handbook of the Philosophy of Economics [year], published by ELSEVIER B.V." and the copyright notice in proper form must be placed on all copies. Any publication or other form of reproduction not meeting these requirements will be deemed to be unauthorized.

Submission of your contribution constitutes your assurance that the material is your own original work, that it has not previously been published, that you own the copyright to it, that to the best of your knowledge it contains nothing of a libellous or defamatory nature and that it does not otherwise infringe upon or violate any right of any third party.

You give us the right to credit you as the author of your contribution and to use your name and pertinent biographical information in, and in advertising and promotion of the Book.

Should you have any questions please do not hesitate to communicate with us.

A copy of this letter has been sent to the Editor(s).

Please confirm that the foregoing accurately and completely sets forth our agreement by signing and returning the enclosed copy of this letter.

Yours sincerely,

ELSEVIER B.V.
